| Previous fiscal year  | 655.3     | 44.0             | 41.5                                            | 24.5                                    | 249.31                     |  |

(Reasons for the Revision)

Net sales are projected to fall short of the previous forecast, mainly due to lower sales volumes of nylon polymers, caprolactam, and other products in the Polymers & Chemicals segment resulting from declining demand in the Asian and European markets.

Operating profit, ordinary profit, and profit attributable to owners of parent are expected to fall short of the previous forecasts, despite generally strong product demand in the Specialty Products segment. This is partly due to lower sales volumes of nylon polymers and caprolactam and a narrowing price spread (difference between selling prices and main raw material prices). Another factor is the expected deterioration in the profitability of the equity-method affiliate engaged in cement-related businesses due to delays in effort to correct sales prices.

(Reasons for the Revision)

UBE's basic policy is to provide consistent and sustainable dividends as a platform for shareholder returns. The Company set a dividend on equity ratio (DOE) of at least 2.5% and a consolidated total return ratio of at least 30% over the three-year period of its medium-term management plan that was launched in the fiscal year ending March 2023.

Since the fiscal year-end shareholders' equity is expected to remain at about the same level as the end of the previous fiscal year, the Company projects an annual dividend of 95 yen per share based on the DOE of 2.5% which is one of its policies for returning profits to shareholders. As a result, the year-end dividend forecast is 45 yen per share.
